UC ReX Workgroups

UC-ReX is organized in working groups. The chairs organize their working group meetings and report directly to the executive committee, which meets bi-monthly via conference call.

Data Harmonization

This working group defines how data will be mapped across sites to create interoperability of data, and is led by Davera Gabriel, UC Davis. Interoperability is defined as the ability of two or more systems to exchange and use information. The group defines how sites will map to common ontologies accommodating different data types and prioritizes data to be harmonized. This process is also called “semantic integration” or alignment.

Technical Implementation

This working group is charged with coordinating software engineers and programmers from all sites to ensure appropriate and timely software implementation. The workgroup leader, Lisa Dahm, UCI, works directly with the vendor to ensure technical issues are resolved and that the computational environment is ready for data queries and exchanges. This group is responsible for the network and site implementations required to accommodate this project.
